REDS POISED TO DRIVE ONTO RUMANIAN SOIL

Soviet Troops Reach Point Where Hitler Started Drive Three Years Ago.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 27—The Red ... was poised today for its first ... onto enemy soil after ... ng triumphantly to the Prut ... border of Rumania from ... Adolf Hitler lauched the ... ern wing of his ill-starred in... of Russia nearly three ... ago.

... sian big guns already are ... ng down a barrage on Ru... territory, Moscow dis... ches said today, and Soviet in... men were expected to surge ... across the narrow Prut which ... reached on a 53-mile front ... today, only a week after they ... the broader Dniester, ... 60 miles behind them.

Fire Victory Volley

... 24 volleys from 324 guns ... in Moscow last night ... rockets burst above the city ... celebration of the drive to the ... enemy's border, the army news... paper Red Star asserted: "For the Red army there are no boundaries; ... boundaries are victory, Ber... and a strait jacket for the mad German Valkyrie.

Premier Marshal Stalin also reported capture of the Bessarabian ... city of Byelsi, a victory ... closed another German ... route of retreat from lower Russia. Other Soviet forces were ... declared 20 miles of Iasi (Jassy), ... rough which runs the major ... railway from the Black sea ... port of Odessa.

The surge to the Prut was regarded in London as already ... forming a German stand at Odessa and besieged Nikolaev. Turkish reports that Hitler was ... rushing reinforcements through Hungary and Rumania suggested he probably would make a stand in Rumania in an attempt at least to save the Ploesti oil fields. The Russians were reported within 200 miles of the vital oil regions.

Reds Gain Elsewhere

The Russians also hammered out ... gains near the middle Dniester river yesterday, a Soviet communique announcing that Kamenets Podolsk, in the southwestern Ukraine, had been encircled and that the Red army was storming through its streets.

In old Poland, where some Russian units are within 35 miles of the Bug river, the Red army was declared to have surrounded Tarnopol, and to be wiping out the German garrison. Other Russian forces already had by-passed the city in their drive toward Lvov.

(German broadcasts asserted the Russians had thrown 100,000 men into a new drive along the Mogilev sector of White Russia, but the report had no Soviet confirmation.)

The honor of reaching the Prut fell to ex-lumberjack Marshal Ivan S. Konev and his second Ukraine army.

The Russians, in their epic military comeback since the Nazis hammered at Stalingrad and swept so close to Moscow its people could hear the boom of big guns and see the flashes of exploding shells, have recovered all except about 60,000 square miles of pre-1939 Rusisan territory. Since Stalingrad they have marched back 800 miles.

SHIFT IN BRITISH CABINET PREDICTED

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 27—Rising criticism of the Churchill government was coupled with reports today that the prime minister is planning to reshuffle his cabinet.

Latest reports said Anthony Eden might leave the foreign office and that Lord Beaverbrook might be shifted to some post other than his present one of lord privy seal.

Eden, these reports said, is dissatisfied because foreign policy making has been taken over largely by Churchill. Should he resign, his most likely successor, it was believed, would be Lord Cranborne, dominions secretary and leader in the house of lords.

An answer to criticisms of his government at home occupied a large section of the Sunday speech of the prime minister.

Churchill said the coalition government had "brought the British Isles and the British commonwealth and empire out of the jaws of death, back from the mouth of hell."

By The Associated Press

War Summary

BOMBINGS—Great force of RAF bombers carry 2,000 long tons of bombs to Essen, home of Krupp armament works.

RUSSIA—Soviet troops reach Prut river, ready to drive into Rumania at point where Hitler started invasion nearly three years ago.

PACIFIC—Japs suffer more reverses in Pacific but step up pressure on Allies defending Indian border.

ITALY—Artillery duel marks action at Cassino as Nazis resist Allied land drive.

JAPS INCREASE PRESSURE ON INDIAN FRONT

Enemy, However, Suffers Reverses Over Widespread Area in Pacific.

By The Associated Press

The Japanese enemy, beset on half a dozen fronts from Burma to the Marshalls, enlarged his thrust toward Indian Imphal today and, nearly 5,000 miles eastward, apparently got set for another suicidal attack on the Americans grimly holding Bougainville in the Solomons.

In the rugged jungle country of the Ukhrul, 32 miles northeast of Imphal and 15 miles inside India, the Japanese ran into fierce resistance of allied troops and the harassment of allied planes. But far behind his lines the enemy had to contend with a drive of British commandos toward Myitkyina, main Japanese base above the Burma road. The British, along with jungle-tried Gurkha and Kachin troops, were within 32 miles of that base.

Chinese and American troops also drove upon Myitkyina from another direction, pushing down Mogaung valley and helping clear the new Ledo supply route to China.

Japs Hit at Other Points

While the heightened warfare moved slowly toward decisions in Burma and India, the allies dealt clean-cut blows to the Japanese in two other sectors: American troops wiped out an enemy assault suicidally flung against the Empress Augusta bay perimeter on Bougainville; heavy bombers struck again at the Kurile islands just north au deast of the Japanese homeland.

Some 300 Japanese, well-armed and well-fed, were cut to pieces in assaulting the American strongpoint on Bougainville. They advanced almost to a command post on "Hill" 123 before U. S. fire killed them off.

Associated Press War Correspondent Charles H. McMurtry said there were indications the enemy was preparing for more such attacks.

Liberators for the first time hit Onnekotan Island in the Kuriles. The strike was significant because it moved the American attack one notch closer to Tokyo from that direction. Paramushiro, 20 miles northeast of Onnekotan, was bombed for the sixth time. Shimushu, another Kurile island, also was hit.

In the central Pacific, Medium bombers hit Ponape, eastern guardian of Truk and three unnamed enemy positions in the American-dominated Marshalls.

Occupy Two More Isles

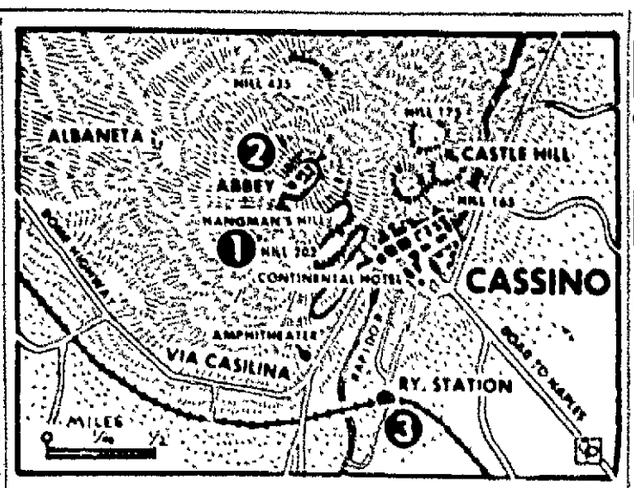
In the Admiralty islands, American dismounted cavalrymen continued mopping up Japanese who scattered after the fall of Lorengau on Manus island nine days ago, and on Friday occupied without opposition the islets of Ano and Ndrova off the southeast coast of Manus. American destroyers, aiding the mop-up process, poured broadsides onto Pityilu island, northwest of Lorengau and on the northern fringe of Seadler harbor.

Elsewhere around the Bismarck sea, the allies improved the invasion holdings.

Rabaul, New Britain, most-bombed spot in the south Pacific, shook under 82 tons of bombs and Fifth army air force bombers and fighters dealt a 207-ton bombing blow at Wewak, New Guinea, Saturday.

The Japanese in India pushed one spearhead nearer Kohima, not far from the Bengal-Assam railroad which supplies allied forces in northern India. Kohima is about 60 miles north of Imphal.

A U. S. communiue from Chungking disclosed that American bombers raided rail installations in Indo-China and along the Burma road in Burma.



WORLD'S TOUGHEST TWO MILES. Despite terrific allied bombings and long weeks of hand to hand fighting, stubbornly battling Nazi forces, infiltrating the ruins of Cassino by subterranean passages, Saturday had recaptured one-fourth of the town. They continue to fight fiercely from strategic spots in the bombed ruins. Three Nazi tanks have been sneaked into Hotel Continental, adding their cannon fire to the defense of the key point. The town's flat area is little more than a mile square with hills and mountains, as shown in this closeup. Sole contact with enemy troops holding Hangman's hill (1) and Hill 202 is from the air. On the Abbey hill (2) the fight moves from rock to rock and bloody skirmishes are reported to be in progress at (3) the railroad freight yards.

KRUPP PLANT TARGET OF BIG RAF ATTACK

Smaller British Forces Hammer Other German Cities in Night Raids.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 27—Strong forces of American Liberators and Flying Fortresses blasted at Nazi airdromes in southwest and central France today, following up a night assault by RAF bombers on Essen, home of the Krupp works.

* * *

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 27—British heavy bombers thundered over western Germany in very great strength last night and dropped a crushing weight of high explosives and incendiaries—perhaps 2,000 long tons—on the battered city of Essen, site of the sprawling Krupp armaments works.

Smaller forces of RAF raiders hammered the German rubber center of Hannover, 125 miles to the northeast, and pounded rail targets at Courtrai in Belgium.

Other unspecified targets in western Germany also were attacked and mines laid in enemy waters during the overnight operations, which the air ministry said cost nine planes.

Clouds Obscure Results

Clouds made full observation of the results of the attack on Essen impossible, the air ministry said, but it was apparent the RAF had dealt another concentrated blow at the city in an effort to wipe out the results of reconstruction work which the Germans have been carrying on in this vital industrial center.

Essen was last raided in force by the RAF July 25, 1943.

Previously Essen had been the main source of Germany's heavy armament, but after the July 25 raid air minister Sir Archibald Sinclair declared "Essen, and with it Krupps, has been shattered."

He called the results of the previous seven assaults on Essen "catastrophic," but warned the Germans probably would try to repair the damage.

Last night's foray was the third night in succession that the RAF's heavy bombers had been out over the continent in force.

The venture into occupied territory last night was a follow-up to the Saturday night heavy bomber assault on Aulnoye, a French railway junction on the Belgian border, and Lyon in southeastern France. Mosquitos gave Belin a light going over the same night.

1,700 U. S. Planes On Raid

American heavy and medium bombers and fighters, massing in the skies in numbers estimated to total possibly 1,700, beat a rapid tattoo throughout yesterday on targets near the coasts of France an the Netherlands.

The American operations cost five bombers and one fighter.

The great summer assaults on Essen were estimated to have damaged nearly two-thirds of the Krupp Works but the Germans were believed to have repaired almost one-fifth of the total damage.

Bricker Says 60 Million Jobs Needed After War

By The Associated Press

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 27—Sixty million jobs, "10,000,000 more than we had before the war," must be available in America after hostilities end, Gov. Bricker of Ohio asserts.

The Ohio chief executive, making a swing through the south and southwest in support of his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination declared in a radio address here yesterday that industries must be returned to private owners after the war.

The government can not provide the 60,000,000 jobs, but it can encourage the atmosphere in which private enterprise can thrive and make them available, he added.

At a week-end press conference in Little Rock, Bricker said the Republican party would make "great inroads" into the solid south this year.

INDUSTRIAL GROUP TO MEET TUESDAY

District Post-War Planning Session Scheduled Here.

Final arrangements were made today for representatives of industrial concerns in Marion and nearby counties to meet in Hotel Harding Tuesday at 4 p. m. with regional officers of the committee of economic development.

Harold J. Grigsby, Marion county chairman for the CED, has been informed that Claris Adams of Columbus, chairman for a 26-county Fourth Region that includes Marion, C. F. Leland of Cincinnati, regional director for CED, and at least one other regional official will attend the Marion meeting, one of a series to be held in various communities in the area.

Bruce Burgess, Delaware county chairman, J. J. Rardin, Union county chairman and L. C. Haaser, Crawford county chairman, are all expected to attend, along with delegations from those counties, Mr. Grigsby was informed.

REMOVE STAMP TIME LIMITS

Expiration Dates Eliminated on Both Red and Blue Ration Coupons.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 27 — The office of price administration said today it was eliminating the expiration dates on both red an blue food rationing stamps from now on.

A spokesman said the plan was in line with the policy already adopted on shoes and sugar, to prevent buying rushes just before the coupons expired.

Another factor, it was stated, was the tendency of consumers to cash in their unspent ration stamps for tokens—which do not have expiration dates—thus creating a heavy drain on the supply of the new plastic ration currency.

"The prevention of token hoarding is a factor in the decision," the spokesman said, "but not the main one. This plan has been under consideration for many weeks."

Checks with OPA during the last several days brought the response that no decision had been reached, but it was learned today the formal order will be issued probably this afternoon. OPA's regional offices, notified of the impending change in policy, were told over the week-end to hold up any announcement. However, at least three OPA field offices apparently failed to get the second message and made public the first.

In Dallas, Tex., one of the cities in which the announcement was made, it was reported tokens were fast disappearing from circulation as housewives turned in stamps and tucked tokens into their pocketbooks.

Unless some new change occurs, OPA's decision will make the currently valid red and blue stamps in ration book four good for an indefinite period. Red stamps A8, B8, C8, D8, E8, and F8, were due to go out May 20 and red stamps G8, H8, and J8 on June 18. Blue stamps A8, B8, C8, D8, and E8, were dated as good only through May 20, while blue stamps D8, G8, H8, J8 and K8 which become valid April 1 were originally scheduled to expire June 20.

Sparks Again Demands Investigation of Willkie

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 27—Charging that "prominent and interested internationalists" were spending large sums to effect the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie, C. Nelson Sparks of Akron, O., said he will send a letter to Sen. Kilgore (D-W.Va.) demanding immediate investigation of charges in his book, "One Man, Wendell Willkie."

He said yesterday the letter would remind Kilgore, chairman of a sub-committee of the senate elections committee, of charges in the book of "high pressuring of delegates through coercion and free use of money...and the like," at the 1940 Republican convention, which he said "should be investigated now so as to prevent it happening again in 1944."

In Milwaukee, Willkie reiterated his previous statement that he hoped the senate would investigate.

Esther Glewwe Stassen, and her husband, Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota had a very serious talk together early in 1943.

Stassen wished to resign the governorship of Minnesota, to begin active service with the United States Navy.

The discussion covered a number of subjects, among them:

1—The children, seven-year-old Glenn, now in third grade of public school at South St. Paul, and Kathleen, two years old and just learning to talk. Children of all ages need a father's supervision and companionship.

2—The family income. The pay of a lieutenant commander on active duty in the far Pacific doesn't reach as far as the $7,000 salary of the Minnesota governorship.

3—The cutting short of Harold's promising career as a leader in politics and government.

And how did the husband-and-wife conference end?

"Well," Mrs. Stassen says, "I told him what I've always told him—that if there was a job he felt had to be done, he should do it."

Today former Governor Stassen is with the battle fleet which is smashing the Japs back westward across the Pacific—and Mrs. Stassen is carrying on, simply and without pretention, just as are hundreds of thousands of other wives of fighting men.

There is none of the dramatic about Mrs Stassen. In manner and appearance she is no different than millions of wives and mothers scattered throughout the United States. Quiet and unassuming, of average height and with dark brunet hair, she is pleasant and attractive.

ESTHER GLEWWE STASSEN

A deep interest in politics derives from the conviction, shared with her husband, that the internal future of our country rests with those citizens whose belief in the desire for good government is strong.

Mrs. Stassen's interest in politics is not of the speech-making type, however, nor has her photograph—which reveals a charming, youthful woman—appeared frequently in the public press. She avoids publicity whenever possible.

Mrs. Stassen does her own housework and cooking—there's an ever-ready pan of home-made cookies as an invitation to her own children and other youngsters of the neighborhood to "stay close to the house"—but has found time for some Red Cross surgical dressing work and for an art extension course at the University of Minnesota.

During her never-lengthy absences from home, there are her mother and two sisters to watch over the children. They moved in for companionship when Harold Stassen donned a Navy uniform.

Born Esther Glewwe, Mrs. Stassen married Harold Stassen in 1929. They are the same age. Their families had been friends for many years.

POLITICS INJECTED INTO WAR PROBE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 27—Republican charges that Senator Truman (D-Mo.) was using his chairmanship to further a fourth term for President Roosevelt blew up a political storm today over the senate's war investigating committee.

Senator Bushfield (R-SD) answered Truman's plea for a continuation of the President's "wise and experienced" leadership with an assertion that the committee which has been critical of some phases of the war effort apparently was "being used now to forward the candidacy of one man for president."

"I think the statement is completely partisan and out of place," Bushfield declared.

In a press statement issued through the office of the secretary of the senate in his absence, Truman said yesterday that with the crucial European invasion at hand "our commander-in-chief will require prayerful understanding and vigorous support."

"I think the country realizes," the Missourian said, "that we have wise and experienced leadership. And I am further convinced that this leadership will be continued until the job at hand is completed. No one can divide us in this supreme effort."

Republican members of the committee said the statement took them by surprise, inasmuch as the group only recently reaffirmed its policy of keeping politics out of its work.

Senator Ball (R-Minn) commented that Truman's statement "obviously was made for its political effect" and he and Senators Brewster (R-Me.) and Burton (R-Ohio) joined in declaring the Missourian was not expressing the committee's sentiments

The present stoppage involves no dispute with the company, Jablonowski emphasized.

What Would You Seek in Funeral Service?

Have you ever really given any thought to funeral service and to what you would expect from the funeral director you would select to serve you?

It usually is too late to think about these things when the need for that service has arrived. That is the main reason for these messages. We believe that every one should know something about the funeral services that are available in this community, and of their ability to furnish the kind of service you would want.

As a further step in that direction, we invite inquiry about both our service and its cost. There is nothing about either that anyone may not know.

How yours truly got out of the "ower class"

I USED TO BE the kind of a guy who was always on the owing end of the deal.

I owed on the wedding ring. I owed on the house and the car and the furniture.

If I was even with the grocer, I owed the gas man. If I was even with the gas man, I owed the grocer. Golly, I got tired of it. (And so did the grocer.)

But, it's all different now!

After Pearl Harbor, I started buying War Bonds on the Payroll Saving Plan. Every pay day, regular as clockwork, I lent 10% of what I was making to Uncle Sam. Knew he needed it to win the war . . . and this Payroll Plan was the simple, easy way to do my part.

What's more, it's automatic. Keeps me buying Bonds regular, instead of forgetting and frittering away the money somewhere else.

Well, sir, I soon found out I could afford putting this money in Bonds. I'm making better money these days, and there's a darn sight fewer things for me and the missus to spend that money on. So, I'm actually coming out even, Bonds and all.

And the other night, fingering over those nice crisp War Bonds, I said to the missus: "For once," I said, "we got somebody owing us money. And that somebody is Uncle Sam. He's promising to pay us back $4.00 for every $3.00 we put in these Bonds. And, just between you and me and the lamp post, there's no surer promise in the world."

"My," said the missus, "why don't we try to buy more of those Bonds out of your pay? I could do some paring down here and there. Let's see if we can't make it 15% instead of 10%."

We did it, by golly! AND SO CAN YOU!

Let's all KEEP BACKING THE ATTACK!

Always Needed

We always need Easter Sunday, for Easter is a symbol of the Resurrection, a reminder of Christianity's promise that there is a life everlasting. In time of war, the things for which Easter stands are even more precious than in times of peace.

Let us, then, fill our churches to over-flowing on this Easter Sunday, so that we may take home with us the strengthened faith, the fresh determination, the higher ideals, which help so much to keep us steadfast and strong.

Wild Wa Tribe of Burma Hopes To Collect A Few Heads—Japs

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH
AP War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN BURMA — The Wild Wa is honing his dah in the hope of lopping off a few more—Japanese heads.

He enlisted enthusiastically on the allied side against any Japanese intrusion into his remote mountain domain.

Once the Wild Wa once was the terror of the northeast Burma hill country. Head-hunting was part of a religious, practice; under-taken ceremoniously with the belief that a good crop of enemy heads grinning from posts outside the villages would produce a good harvest.

His dah is his all-purpose knife, a chisel - shaped, razor-edged weapon constantly at his side.

Patient missionary work begun by an American Baptist and carried on by his sons, and concurrent introduction of the law of the west, has turned the dah almost exclusively to cutting bamboo and other utilitarian uses.

Started 44 Years Ago

The taming of the wild Wa was undertaken many years ago by William Marcus Young, who spent 44 years here, established four missions in the Wa and Shan states and baptized more than 40,000 hill people. When he died he left the wild Wa to his jungle-bred sons, Harold and Vincent, both now serving as advisors to the armed forces.

They have carried on the elder Young's constant discouragement of head-hunting until it is practically eliminated. No white man is known to have lost a head to the wild Wa since the '90s.

With the war came the necessity of warning the wild Wa of the Japanese menace.

In Burma's darkest days came the message, from the Youngs, that the Japanese were coming and that they were bad people.

The wild Wa thought this over for awhile and then with his retinue, approached Harold Young.

"These people you have been telling us about," they said, fingering their dahs.

Putting satan behind him with the broad view that there are greater evils abroad in the world, Harold said the intruder could be met with the best weapon available.

Gave Life to People

Harold Young's present service to the armed forces results from a lifelong devotion to the people of the jungle and hill country. He was born in Burma some years ago and has spent only four years in the United States, getting his formal education during his father's sabbaticals at Denison university (Granville, O.), a Bible insutute in Los Angeles, and the Berkeley (Calif.) divinity school. His elder son, now 17 and a jungle craftsman of the first order, and his 15-year-old daughter were born in Burma but have been "home," where his other son, 9, was born. (Harold Young's only address in America is that of his wife's parents in Los Angeles.)

Harold lives here in the fringe of the jungle, a one-man information bureau.

He shows jungle-bound soldiers how to get along, how to avoid and elude attack from the animal kingdom, how to subsist on vegetation, fish and game; how to cook a jungle vegetable stew in a leaning joint of bambo; how to extract drinking water from bamboo and wild banana plants; how to make a water-tight home and bed.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

REDS PRAISED BY CHURCHILL

Prime Minister Speaks Cautiously of Coming Invasion Across Channel

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 27—Restrained approval, lacking in the enthusiasm of the early war years, was expresed today by most London newspapers for Prime Minister Churchill's address last night in which he confidently predicted victory and praised the Russian westward advance as "the greatest cause of Hitler's undoing."

Generally speaking, there seemed some disappointment among listeners who had been expecting another great call to valor on the eve of the mighty, decisive events foreshadowed by Churchill's warning that "the hour of greatest effort is approaching."

In his 47-minute broadcast address, his first for a year, the prime minister did not touch upon problems of diplomacy confronting the allied nations, as some quarters had expected, but reviewed the war's progress, defended his administration, and in general terms outlined post-war economic plans for Britain.

Speaks Guardedly

He spoke only guardedly of the forthcoming western invasion of Europe, but declared:

"I must warn you that to deceive and baffle the enemy there will be many false alarms, feints and dress rehearsals * * *

"When the signal is given the whole circle of avenging nations will hurl themselves on the foe * * *"

Announcing that American air power in Britain now exceeds that of the RAF, he predicted the two mighty forces together would produce results "which will certainly be of enormous advantage to the cause of the allies."

In the Pacific, he said, it is possible progress may be made "more rapidly than was formerly thought possible" because the Japanese "are showing signs of grave weakness" under hammer blows from the United States Navy.

Praises Russians

Turning to Russia, the prime minister declared:

"Not only have the Hun invaders been driven from the land they have ravaged, but the guts of the German army have been largely torn out by Russian valor and generalship."

The victorious advance of the Soviet armies, Churchill said, "has been the main cause of Hitler's approaching downfall" in the Balkans.

The allied campaign in Italy, he said, "has not been as rapid or decisive as we had hoped," but he aded he had no doubt Rome would be "rescued."

Although Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express declared the prime minister's "story of achievements in every direction was impressive—and none more than the record of home front preparations," the Laborite Daily Herald and the Daily Mail expressed dissatisfaction with the part in which the prime minister said progress had been made in shaping such post-war projects as housing, education, national health, national insurance and demobilization of the armed forces, adding that "one might have expected" the government would have been commended.

Marion Youths In Unusual Reunion at USO Club Abroad

Two Marion youths, Paul Copeland and George Drumm, U. S. Coast Guardsmen, figured in a surprise reunion recently when six sailors met in a USO Club at an undisclosed point. Others in the sextet were Johnny Hefferman, 18, and Eddie Charette from Staten Island, N. Y., and Chet Boedecker and Bob Bertholow from Minnesota.

Copeland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Copeland of Blaine avenue and Drumm is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Drumm of Irey avenue. Their story runs something like this:

That particular afternoon 20-year-old George Drumm was having lunch at the Club with Hefferman, 18, when Paul Copeland, also 18, walked up and looked hard at George. "Say, where're you from?" he asked. "Marion, Ohio," George replied. Paul grinned. "Right! Remember me? We joined the service together almost two years ago. Remember the party in our honor? How've ya been?" (Mrs. Ruby Cromer whose sons were leaving for service entertained the boys with a party before their departure.)

"As the fellows were exchanging notes on their experiences since they saw each other at the party, Eddie Charette, 21, ambled along. Paul called him over to be introduced to the buddy from home and as they talked Eddie's eyes began to concentrate on Johnny. "Say, where are you from?" to which Johnny replied "Staten Island, N. Y." "Sure, you're, let's see, Heffernan!" Eddie exclaimed. Johnny gazed a minute, "Hey, Newdorp High school," as he recognized a school chum whom he had not seen since Newdorp days. A few minutes later 21-year-old Bob Bartholomew came along with his best friend in tow—20-year-old Chet Boedecker, with whom he joined the service and went through boot training after years of close friendship in Minneapolis, Minn. They had not seen each other for a year.

Copeland entered service Nov. 11, 1942 and was stationed at New York City and London, Conn., later going to Miami, Fla., and New Orleans, La. He was home last in July last year. A brother Gene Copeland is with a tank division in England. Drumm, who is based at San Juan, Porto Rico, joined the armed forces a year ago last October. Prior to going into service he was employed with Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. here. Both are graduates of Harding High school.

Rulings Without Representation

IN the argument over representation for independent unions on the war labor board, more is at stake than the composition of that specific administrative agency.

WLB has representatives of AFL and CIO to look after the interests of those organizations, and it has been their policy to vote for those interests as a bloc. The manufacturers' representatives, on the other hand, vote for their interests, with the result that the only objective possible in a close decision becomes the responsibility of the public members, who are too small a minority to have decisive influence.

The claim that WLB should have representation from independent unions suggests that thereafter it should add representation, also, from unorganized labor and other groups. This reductio ad absurdum reveals the weakness of all boards composed of representatives of special interests—a weakness which seems almost to have become an adopted policy of government, insofar as it is applied widely to the composition of government agencies. It even was applied in one notable instance to the chairmanship of an executive agency, when Sidney Hillman theoretically representing labor, and William S. Knudsen, theoretically representing management, were made co-directors of the office of production management.

Perhaps this is the established trend and must be yielded to, but the omen for accomplishment is not good. If the United States cannot find men who can be trusted to make objective and impartial decisions to man its appointive boards and agencies, it cannot expect objective and impartial decisions from men appointed because they represent special interests. That was the basis of fascist economics under Mussolini in Italy—and it didn't work.

Turnover

THE resignations of Randolph Paul, Lowell Mellett and Leo T. Crowley, all closely identified with the Roosevelt administration as appointive assistants of more than ordinary importance, suggests the turnover rate at the higher executive level of the government may be accelerating. It never has been low.

Aside from replacements necessitated by death, failing health and the necessity of rehabilitating depleted earnings while the sun was shining, Mr. Roosevelt's executive family also has been characterized by its inability to settle down and work happily within itself. One thinks, without trying too hard, of Raymond Moley, Harry Woodring and James A. Farley, or remembers Sumner Welles, Leon Henderson and a baker's dozen of assistant secretaries who have come and gone, frequently issuing blistering statements on their way out.

Some of the turnover is inevitable in an administration long in power. The rest of it must be attributed to the well advertised fact that the political philosophy called the New Deal has been many things to many men, but to those who found it wasn't any of the things they thought it was or should be there always was the alternative of quitting if they didn't like it.

The Man with the Rifle

THERE is poetic justice—and there should be more than that—in the foot soldier's rising star in World war II.

At the outset of hostilities, he was neglected. Armored troops moving with incredible speed and power were going to supplant him on the ground, and it appeared that an even more potent substitute would be found in the aviation arm. Infantry, announced the theorists, had been outmoded.

During the course of the war, the infantryman found himself shoved out of the publicity picture by such novel and glamorous figures as parachute troopers, specially trained Commandos and Rangers and the amphibious marine. He yielded precedence to artillerymen and even to the hard-working mechanics who serviced the war's thundering hordes of mechanical equipment.

Nevertheless as the fighting came to closer grips, first in Russia, then in the South Pacific, the plain soldier with a rifle and the staying power to maintain himself as a fighting unit when all else failed, began to come into his own. He emerged as the ultimate decisive force in warfare, the secret weapon that could be depended on when all else failed.

The infantrymen, aided by air power, machinery, electronics, new weapons, propaganda, grand strategy, sea power and the battalions of production behind the lines, is now being proclaimed the deciding factor in battle. Until he has slogged his weary way to the objective, it has not been taken. The new weapons finally cancel out, leaving the man with the rifle and the final full measure of devotion to carry the day or lose it.

News Behind the News

Willkie Credited with Most Publicity But Dewey with Bulk of Delegates.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 27—Mr. Willkie is beating the bushes of Wisconsin in a hotter hunt for delegates than any presidential candidates ever attempted before.

While he flails on with great publicity (12 or 14 Washington political writers were invited to accompany him), the other Republican candidates, his adversaries, are quietly plucking a greater bulk of delegates.

Their case is such that hardly a paragraph on the press association wires heralds attention to them, and, in some cases, their pickings have been concealed behind the official announcements that the delegates are "uninstructed."

New Mexico Choices

For instance, New Mexico has chosen eight delegates, supposedly unpledged. If my information is correct, the choices were made to read seven for Dewey and one for Willkie.

At the head of the delegation is Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms of the old Illinois isolationist McCormick family and Cleveland's Hanna, who is certainly not pro-Willkie.

Florida has chosen 15 delegates just as softly. Those who make it their business to know such things, line up the delegation prospects as: Dewey 5, Willkie 5, MacArthur 2, Bricker 3.

In North Carolina, Dewey won the whole delegation of 25 by unanimous action of the state convention.

In New Hampshire, where the results were more widely proclaimed, the results were not as clear. The only two instructed delegates are for Dewey. Willkie claims six of the others who are unpledged, including the former isolationist leader in the senate, George Moses, whose designation in this way at least raises doubts. But accept Willkie's claim and three New Hampshire delegates are doubtful, if not for Dewey.

How They Stand

The grand total of delegates thus far, according to my count, runs:

Dewey 39, Willkie 12, MacArthur 2, Bricker 3, doubtful 3.

The inescapable conclusion must be that while Willkie is running away with the publicity, Dewey is running away with the delegates. When you consider that Wisconsin has only 24 delegates, the current discrepancy between headlines and heads must be apparent. Mr. Willkie's overwhelming difficulties, even if he happens to win Wisconsin, are likewise evident.

But why did Mr. Willkie choose Wisconsin and invite in the Washington political writers to witness? Wisconsin is old LaFollette territory, the primary stronghold of isolationism in the United States. LaFollette, the elder, voted against the last war, and led the fight against the treaty of Versailles. Why then fight here in the toughest sector?

His Only Arena

Apparently, there was no place else to fight. In Michigan he would run into Dewey as favorite son; in Illinois, into even worse difficulties; Ohio is Bricker's; in Nebraska, he can only run against Stassen; California has been neutralized and so on. Thus, even the choice of a locale for this fight is hardly a sign of strength.

Technically, however, Willkie has a strong advantage in Wisconsin. Dewey has only 16 delegates entered in his name, which means he has already lost 8 of the 24 before he starts. Furthermore, he did not choose his delegates, nor did his people. In fact, he tried to stop the movement, and what is left of his candidacy there only represents a local movement in his behalf.

Off-hand, therefore, you would expect that Willkie would get the bulk of the delegation when the polls close April 4. Then his real troubles have begun.

Here We Go Again!

Time for 1944 Tax Estimate

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON—Some 15 million taxpayers must file by midnight of April 15 another of those dudbusted income tax returns. This return is the declaration of estimated income and Victory tax for 1944. It was originally due March 15 but was postponed to relieve taxpayers and revenue collectors of having to struggle with two complicated returns at the same time.

You must make a declaration of estimated tax if:

1. You are single (or married and not living with spouse) and expect to receive in 1944—
   (a) More than $2,700 in wages subject to withholding; or—
   (b) More than $100 in income from other sources, provided total income is expected to be $500 or more.
2. You are married and living with spouse and expect to receive in 1944, either alone or together with your spouse—
   (a) More than $3,500 in wages subject to withholding; or—
   (b) More than $100 income from other sources provided your total combined income is expected to be $1,200 or more, or your total separate income is expected to be more than $621.

Your declaration is made on a small form, 1040-ES. Along with this form, you should obtain from the revenue bureau a four-page pamphlet of instructions and work sheets to help compute the estimated 1944 tax. Compute your estimate on a work sheet before attempting to fill out the declaration form.

There are two kinds of work sheets. One is a simplified form for computing the tax on incomes of not more than $10,000. The other is a longer alternative sheet for estimating the tax on incomes over $10,000 or for figuring the tax on smaller incomes where more detailed, precise computation is desired.

The simplified work sheet has a tax estimating table which makes automatic allowance for deductions such as interest, taxes and contributions, amounting to about eight per cent of income after the taking of personal exemption and credit for dependents. A majority of taxpayers will use this work sheet because it is easier to fill out.

However, if your anticipated deductions for 1944 exceed eight per cent, it probably will be advantageous to use the longer, alternative work sheet. While persons with expected incomes of more than $10,000 are required to use this form, any taxpayer may use it if he wishes.

Two changes have made the alternative sheet simpler than it was last year. The 10 per cent earned income credit has been abolished and a new tax table enables you to figure the combined amount of normal tax and surtax.

After computing your estimated 1944 tax on a work sheet, figure on a separate piece of paper the amount of tax to be withheld from your wages during the year.

Do not send your work sheet to the collector. Keep it, together with a copy of your declaration, for use in making out your annual return next march. This copy also will come in handy if you have to make other quarterly tax payments.

How Peace Came in 1918

Breakdown in Germany Tipped Balance Unexpectedly.

TWENTY-SIX years ago in the spring of 1918, decisive year of World war I, military and political leaders of the Allies believed the end of the war was far distant. Marshal Foch, supreme Allied commander, believed "the decisive year of the conflict will be 1919." There was no such confident prediction as that made by Gen. Eisenhower: "The Allies will win the European war in 1944 . . . if every man and woman from the front lines to the remotest hamlet does his or her full duty."

Though the decisive battles of the war were fought on the western front, military defeats for the Central Powers in the Balkans, the Near East and northern Italy played an important part in bringing about the final triumph of the Allies. Bulgaria capitulated on Sept. 29, 1918. Austria-Hungary offered to surrender unconditionally a month later. Turkey quit on Oct. 30.

Meanwhile mutinies broke out among German submarine crews. Soldiers sent to restore order at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven joined the mutineers. Disaffection spread to Hamburg and Bremen, where sailors organized "soviets" and refused to obey orders. The spirit of revolt, fanned by Allied propaganda, spread through the reich. At the time of the armistice, the kaiser had fled and Germany was in a state of revolution.

German military apologists have asserted the German army never was defeated in the field; that only the collapse of the home front compelled acceptance of Allied armistice terms in 1918. It is undeniably true that the home front did collapse. Disintegration behind the lines resulted from war weariness and civilian shortages, from poor leadership, from the failure of domestic propaganda, but most of all from the bad news from battle fronts.

ALLIED propaganda began to show important results during the summer and early autumn of 1918. Both among army personnel and civilians, the conviction became stronger that if the kaiser were deposed and a liberal regime placed in power the peace terms of the Allies would not be onerous.

As the war lengthened, Germany had developed a serious manpower shortage. Fighting on the western front, like the fighting in Russia in this war, had taken enormous numbers of lives, and more men were constantly needed to meet the increasing strength of the attack. Drastic measures forced almost every available civilian into war production.

Manpower was not available for production of new submarines. Ludendorff reported in February, 1918, that he had no tanks for his great 1918 offensive. Manpower shortages halted truck production. Railroad transportation facilities were worn out.

In contrast to the German and Austrian decline in will and ability to fight, the Allies were gaining rapidly in strength at the time of the armistice. France had passed the peak of her military power, but supplies and equipment were being replenished by Allied—particularly American—shipments.

The American war contribution, which throughout 1917 had consisted largely of promises, began to materialize in 1918. American troops transported to the western front in the spring were largely instrumental in halting the German offensive. More troops were on the way. American war production was rising, and was on the verge of surpassing that of Britain and France.

FIRST hint of defeat that the German people received officially came from Foreign Minister Richard von Kuhlmann. In the face of German victories in the 1918 offensive, Kuhlmann admitted in the reichstag on June 24 that peace "can hardly be expected through military decisions alone," and expressed his belief that the moment was opportune for peace discussions. The speech produced an immediate lowering of German morale, and Chancellor von Hertling was obliged on the following day to pledge himself to firm prosecution of the war until victory. Kuhlmann resigned soon after.

By early August Ludendorff had concluded that the war could not be won. Allied victory in the second Battle of the Marne shook the Central Powers. The German cabinet resigned on Sept. 28, and on the following day Bulgaria signed an armistice at Salonika which gave Allied forces the use of Bulgarian railroads and of strategic military points in Bulgaria.

Germany launched half a dozen peace offensives during World war I, the first as early as December, 1916. Most of these efforts were made when German forces were in the ascendancy; they were designed to perpetuate the war gains of the Central Powers through a negotiated peace. They explain in large part the Allied insistence in this war on unconditional surrender.

Final German peace move came on Oct. 4, 1918, five days after the surrender of Bulgaria, when the German chancellor, Prince Max of Baden, appealed to President Wilson for a cessation of hostilities. Preliminary exchanges of notes continued for more than a month, but on Nov. 8 German delegates were given safe conduct across Allied lines. The armistice was signed at Marshal Foch's headquarters, a railway car in the Forest of Compiegne, at 5 a. m., Paris time, on Nov. 11, to take effect six hours later.

Grant's Ambition

PITTSBURGH — Gen. U. S. Grant didn't set his political sights beyond being mayor of Galena, Ill., according to Capt. Samuel Dean, old-time Ohio river steamboat man who knew the President when he was in the leather business at Galena.

Capt. Dean said that one day Grant told him:

"You know, Sam, my greatest ambition is to be elected mayor of Galena. The first thing I'd do would be to build a board walk from my store to the house."

"Make sure you hug the shore, Mr. Wallis."

Louder Please

The Voice (And We Don't Mean Frank Sinatra) Has Vanished But the Memories Linger On

By DAMON RUNYON

SINCE I LOST my voice, or about 90 per cent of its once bell-like timbre, I have discovered many inconveniences as well as some striking conveniences.

The greatest inconvenience is that it involves explanations to friends on meeting them for the first time since the vocal abatement. They are grieved by the absence of my former thunderous salutations.

You see, in my set warmth of greeting as rated by the size of the hellos you give and receive, I was always noted for issuing the hood rive, or top size, the good old "Hello, hello, hello, hello!" The old "Well, well, well, hello, hello, hello."

Now that I am perforce down to the six size hello for one and all, which is just a nubbin of a hello and the brush off kind you give a gee you do not like, my friends are inclined to huffiness toward me until I explain about the voice.

This is a bit of strain in itself, but fortunately they soon start telling me about remedies that cured other blokes they know, so all I have to do is to stand there and nod my head at intervals.

I find the nod wonderfully non-committal, especially when someone is delivering a big knock against someone else because words cannot be carried to the knockee that Runyon was a party to the knock. At least they cannot quote a nod.

I AM OCCASIONALLY distressed by strangers to whom I address myself in my low murmur answering me in imitative whisper, possibly inadvertently, possibly because they think I am kidding and possibly just because they have no sense. Sometimes, even my friends do the same thing in that gentle spirit of mockery of human affliction from which many actors and others have long drawn their humor.

You have undoubtedly heard some of our public performers discourage humorously on cross-eyed persons, on bald heads, on the deaf and the dumb and the lame and the halt. You have perhaps seen them simulate limps and other distortions of the body to point up their jokes. It is a common practice for us to apply nicknames suggestive of affliction such as "Gimp," "Frip," "Humpty," "Deafy," "Blinky," "Baldy" and the like.

False teeth, glass eyes and the toupee have long been standard items of jest among our jokesters. A person who is compelled to resort to a hearing device, one of the greatest boons to afflicted humanity ever invented, is said to be "wired for sound" which is supposed to be good for a hearty laugh.

Not only is infirmity one of our leading topics of humor, but it is often brought up by men in moments of anger against the infirm, as when they say things like "That one-legged so-and-so," as if the infirmity itself were a reproach.

OF COURSE, humor that deals with infirmities is in bad taste. Most American humor is in bad taste and growing worse under the present vogue for the suggestive and the downright obscence in the spoken and written word. But even the suggestive and the obscence are not as unkind as humor dealing with bodily affliction.

The hale and hearty shun the afflicted, and I cannot say I blame them much. I can well imagine that I am a great trial to my friends who have to bend their ears close to my kisser to hear what I am saying. Maybe it would be better for all concerned if I did not try to talk at all because everybody else is talking these days and I would never be missed.

Another Birthday

By Truman Twill

It wouldn't have occurred to us to mention this if people hadn't kept coming around the last few days, looking us over and asking, in the tone reserved for solemn occasions like funerals and electrocutions, how we are feeling.

The word has got around that old Twitchy was in the process of having a birthday. For reasons which remain obscure, the spectators seemed to think something was going to happen, maybe a skin-shedding, or a lapse into a three-day conniption or something. It isn't quite clear.

The fact of the matter is, nothing happened. Nothing ever did happen on a birthday, as far as that's concerned. It's an occasion of no importance whatever, except to others. You, yourself, wake up as usual, dawdle as usual, get toast and jelly on your chin, stagger off to another hard day at the mines and perhaps endure a little kidding and a few presents. When it's all over you don't feel any different. You're just a day older, the same as you are every other day.

Yet, this year people have been nosing around, feeling the places where the Creator would have put muscles if something hadn't happened to divert His attention, looking quizzically at the places where the thick brown hair sort of got rubbed off and asking leading questions. They've been doing everything but testing knee jerks with a rubber mallet.

It happens that the associate relic who sits just south of the head man's spittoon has the same birthday, both as to date and age, and we two old gaffers have been comparing notes. He has the same impression of being watched through narrowed eyelids, this year, and it's his notion that this is because of wartime.

He points out that in wartime manpower is money. When a fellow happens to be in the charmed circle where the army won't want him unless all is lost anyway, yet is still a good way from disappearing over the horizon, he's valuable property, like a ballplayer with a couple good seasons left in him and no replacement in sight. The boss is likely to think of him as an asset without any counterpart.

This is true not only of the boss, but of a man's family, relatives and friends. Well, maybe that's it, but it's upsetting—this being surveyed and squinted at like a candidate for the best dog still in the civilian show. No one knows better than we do that our lines are no bargain, that our legs bend out where they should bend in, that our back sags and our nose is too long.

And that absurd business of the boss coming in and betting us a cigar we couldn't lift him—who did he think he was kidding? We couldn't lift him the best day we ever lived. But that's no reflection on anything connected with having had another birthday. The guy just eats too much, that's all.

So They Say—

They've been licked at night, they've been licked by lesser vessels, they've been licked all over the ocean. The Japanese navy has never wanted to fight us—except Yamamoto and he's dead.—Vice Adm. John S. McCain, deputy chief of naval operations for air.

...INGTON, March 27—...from separate booths in ... radio broadcasting ...airman Dies of the ...mittee investigating un-...activities and Walter ...e columnist and com-...vapped and words on ... night in a renewal of ... feud.

...thout benefit of script ...ditions—they happened ...to each other in the ...eption room as they left ... and exchanged ...ooks.

Facing the Texas Democrat who has had his committee subpoena the transcripts of all Winchell broadcasts of the last two years, Winchell asked why he had not been personally called before the Dies committee.

"All in good time," Dies replied.

"Let's," jibed Winchell, "get together and tell some lies about each other."

"I'd have to go some to get even," Dies snapped.

In their broadcasts, Winchell—a frequent critic of Dies committee functioning—recited what he described as "a newspaperman's personal declaration of independence" and Dies renewed his charge that the commentator had been "used" by others in a campaign to "swear" congress.

"The history of liberty is the history of resistance to irresponsible men who happen to be armed with the powers of government," said Winchell.

"Congress is the last bulwark of your freedom." Dies told the same listeners. "I warn you that there is in this country a carefully organized and integrated and dangerously intelligent and aggressive movement to undermine the authority and destroy the prestige of congress in the interest of setting up an all-powerful central executive. This program of vilification is part of that. * * * We are going to find out and tell you who is paying the bills."

The congressman specifically demanded to know "who is the great personage" who, according to Winchell, had instructed him to continue his radio work in lieu of active service with the Navy in which the commentator holds a reserve commission. Winchell recently said the matter could not be fully detailed until after the war.

The commentator declared: "Far from retracting a single statement, I reiterate every one of them."

Winchell talked for 15 minutes on his usual Sunday night time. Dies followed for 15 minutes, this time being provided by the Andrew Jergens Co., Winchell's sponsor on the air.

MINER ADMITS HE KILLED 2 IN CAR

By The Associated Press

BELLAIRE, O., March 27 — Prosecutor Ross Michener said he would charge Donato Maurizio, 42-year-old coal miner, with first degree murder today in the fatal stabbing of Maurizio's divorced wife, Teresa, 35, and Henry Spradling, 38.

The couple was slain as they sat in the rear seat of an automobile outside a night club near here early Sunday.

Two companions of the stabbing victims, Clyde Snyder and Josephine Bigovich, came out of the club, saw the couple slumped in the car, but thought they were asleep. They drove to Mrs. Maurizio's home five miles away before they discovered their friends were dead, Michener reported.

The prosecutor said Maurizio also known as Donald Myrio, signed a statement that he stabbed the victims with a pocketknife during an argument after opening the door of the car in which they were seated while Snyder and Miss Bigovich were inside the Oasis night club at nearby Shadyside, home of Spradling, also a miner.

Sheriff Cloyd L. Barricklow, who later took Maurizio to Belmont county jail in St. Clairsville, said Maurizio "took a running dive" at bars of his cell in Bellaire jail after signing the statement, opening a gash on his head which a physician treated without stitches.

Snyder said he and Miss Bigovich returned to the car after being inside the club about 15 minutes. He related he thought the pair in the rear seat asleep until he turned on the dome light of his car in front of Mrs. Maurizio's home and found them dead. He sped to police headquarters where word was sent out to pick up Maurizio.

Maurizio was located in Bridgeport, four miles north of here.

Scout Master Named For New U. B. Church Troop

It was decided to hold meetings every Thursday night at 7:30 at the church community house behind the parsonage. A number of the boys were members of Troop 12 which was organized at the church during 1939 and 40. Troop committee members will meet with the troop on April 6.

Robert Roush and Denver Cramer were named assistant Scout masters. Members of the troop committee are Robert W. Brown, chairman, Grover Thrush, Walter Scranton, Forest Ballinger, Fred Saull and Wayne Murray. Loy Rhoads of the Marion District committee was present to assist in organizing the troop.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, March 28

A MOST promising and auspicious day is read from the ruling configurations. Promotion, progress and favors may be expected from those in influence, as well as from political, diplomatic and fraternal or corporate bodies. While there is a definite element of surprise, with an inclination to grasp at sudden openings, yet it would be well to pause and carefully consider their merit, as their effect may be far-reaching and precipitate unforeseen change or disruption. Literary and artistic pursuits may call for renewed aggression. Reason rather than emotions should influence all decisions.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare themselves for an exciting year, with unforeseen changes, travel and adventure, accompanied by exceptional openings for advancement, preferment, and the friendly support of those in influence and authority. Cultivate these with tact and diplomacy. Deal with large organizations, but with logic and far vision, carefully considering plans and agreements, and eliminating hasty and emotional climax, as important denouements are in the offing, and there is danger of false moves.

A child born on this day may have rare talents of a literary, artistic or inventive genius. It may have an eventful career, in high favor with superiors.

16 MARION COUNTY DOCTORS IN SERVICE

Nearby Counties Also Listed in News Summary.

Marion county is credited with having sent 16 doctors to military service thus far in an Associated Press report from Columbus based on records of the Ohio Medical association.

Other counties nearby and the number of doctors from each now in service are listed as follows:

Crawford, 10; Delaware, 7; Hardin, 7; Union, 2; Wyandot, 3; Richland has sent 38, Licking 17, Hancock 12 and Knox 11.

The report lists an Ohio total of 2,775, adding that the state in no sense faces a serious shortage of physicians. Of the total, 2,362 doctors are in the Army, 344 in the Navy and 69 in miscellaneous branches.

Col. H. E. Boucher, deputy state selective service director said selective service hopes enough young doctors would become available to leave a sufficient number of older physicians to care for civilians.

"More doctors are needed now and will be needed as the war for us is just getting started," he said. "However, doctors in the age group under 38 are chiefly desired right now. Ohio's original quota still is not filled. Doctors up to 55 may volunteer and apply for commissions in the medical corps but at present only those under 50 are being accepted."

Doctors who are available are invited to make application for service, Col Boucher said. If they don't apply and are under 38, their names are certified to selective service and they are considered for 1-A classification, the same as any other selectee.

Piles
Are Never 'Mild'
DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves. Instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only positive cure. This can be done without knife, drugs or loss of time from work.

OPA Lists Rules On Sugar for Canning

Sugar for home canning will be made available to consumers at the same rate as last year, and in much the same way, Office of Price Administration officials at Columbus announced today.

The maximum amount of sugar available for home canning purposes for the entire year is not more than 25 pounds per person.

Continuing through Feb. 28, 1945, home canning sugar is made available as follows:

As previously announced, five pounds of sugar for home canning may be bought with Sugar Stamp 40 in War Ration Book Four. The remainder—a maximum of 20 pounds of sugar per person—will be granted on application to local War Price and Rationing Boards any time after March 23.

Application for additional sugar beyond that allowed on Sugar Stamp 40 is to be made on a simple form (OPA-R323) and the entire transaction may be handled by mail. A single application may be filed for all persons living at the same address.

Spare Stamp No. 37 from War Ration Book 4 for each person for whom application is made must be attached to the application. Consumers are urged to estimate their home canning needs carefully and apply only for as much sugar as they are sure they will need. If a consumer underestimates his canning needs, he may apply again at the same board provided the amount received totals not more than 20 pounds per person.

Spare Stamp 37 will not be honored at groceries for sugar. It is only used for purposes of identification at the local board and must be attached to the application form for each person applying for canning sugar.

The only stamps valid at groceries for sugar are Sugar Stamp No. 30, and beginning April 1, Sugar Stamp No. 31, each good for five pounds indefinitely. Sugar Stamp No. 10, made valid February 1, is for canning sugar to take care of the early southern fruit.

Two Killed, Two Hurt in Farm Shooting

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 27 — Coroner Edward E. Smith yesterday returned a tentative verdict of murder and suicide in a shooting in which two persons were killed and two others wounded at farmhouse near here. Mrs. Lavina Pierce, 49, and her son, Homer, 18, were killed and the woman's estranged husband, George Pierce, 46, and a daughter Leatrice, 19, were wounded in the shooting near Reynoldsburg Saturday night.

Sheriff Jacob Sandusky said he was told by other children in the family that Pierce entered the house and opened fire without warning, and then turned the gun on himself.

Pierce yesterday was reported in a critical condition in St. Francis hospital. The daughter was reported in a serious condition.

U. S. Air Raiders Find Foe Unwilling To Risk Fighters

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

One of the most remarkable and significant events of the weekend was the complete absence yesterday of any defense by German warplanes during the widespread assaults on western Europe by 1,700 American and British planes.

Yankee Thunderbolts even attacked Nazi airdromes within sight of Paris without bringing a single Hitlerite fighter off the ground. Now that's an amazing failure for Hitler's great luftwaffe which once ruled Europe, and it undoubtedly had the allied air chiefs in London with their heads together last night.

Probable Solution

The answer to this strange development is of the utmost importance to us; and one which shouldn't be jumped at. We should be most unwise, it seems to me, to rush to the conclusion that Hitler no longer is capable of flinging a defensive airforce into the air. We shall hear plenty from the luftwaffe before the war is over. The true solution of our mystery probably is this:

1. The luftwaffe has been vastly reduced in strength by losses in battle and through allied bombing. There has been such wholesale destruction of Nazi warplane factories that Hitler no longer can replace the destroyed airplanes.

2. The terrific Red onslaught on the eastern front is calling for every warplane the fuehrer can spare. This doesn't mean that he has stripped western Europe of air power. It probably does mean that he is conserving what planes he has there for use against the coming allied invasion. He has been depending more and more recently on anti-aircraft guns to ward off allied attacks. Also he may be reorganizing some air units.

It requires no imagination to understand the Nazi need for defensive air power as they flee before the onrushing Red armies. The arrival of the Russians at the Prut river—frontier of Rumania—after their epic drive of more than 800 miles from Stalingrad, and their continuing thrust into Poland, not only set the triumphal guns of Moscow booming but brought from British Premier Churchill the assertion that the Russian feat "constitutes the greatest cause of Hitler's undoing." He sprinkled a bit of Cayenne on that by adding inelegantly but expressively that "the guts of the German armies have been largely torn out."

Plane Output Reduced

As for the waning strength of Hitler's air force, a month ago a high ranking American air force spokesman in London said since January 1 Germany's twin-engined fighter production had been cut 80 per cent and single engine production reduced 60 per cent by bombing. Since then there has been further heavy destruction of German warplane factories. Also the toll of casualties among Nazi planes has been great.

In this connection the American and British air forces have been growing apace. Premier Churchill in his broadcast yesterday called attention to the fact that United States air power in Britain now exceeds that of the Royal Air Force. He predicted that the two fleets would produce results "which will certainly be of enormous advantage to the cause of the allies."

He presumably had the forthcoming invasion in mind, but if so he refrained from giving us any tips, excepting to warn that "the hour of greatest effort is approaching." Certainly the combined air forces must pave the way, and lead the way, when our men swarm up the beaches. As Britain's great General Montgomery remarked the other day, "when the Germans are sufficiently stunned we will move in."

Democrats Answer Mounting Criticism of Foreign Policy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 27 — Democrats lashed back at mounting Republican criticism today with a vocal defense of the administration's foreign policies and an attack on the "isolationist" opposition they said would pave the way for World war III.

Disclosing he planned a senate speech soon on the matter, Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the foreign relations committee took to task critics who say the state department has no definite foreign policy.

"Of course we have a foreign policy and it has been well defined by the objectives laid down by Secretary of State Hull and others," Connally declared in an interview. "But the first thing we have to do is win the war....

Connally's comment was in line with the tack reportedly taken by Hull recently in conference with members of congress—that it's unwise to rock the boat by specific demands now on territorial and other problems.

Another administration supporter, Senator Tunnell (D-Del) at a "back invasion" rally in Baltimore yesterday, struck at "isolationists" he said fought every move of President Roosevelt to increase the size of the Army and Navy before Pearl Harbor and "now want to take charge of America," adding:

"World war II will be guaranteed and assured if the American people stack the new congress with isolationists and partisan zealots who prefer to fight their political opponents in America rather than totalitarian opponents in Europe."

Meanwhile, the disclosure that state department work on an American version of the international organization subscribed to by the United States, Russia, Great Britain and China at Moscow was progressing sufficiently to warrant a look at the picture by congress soon was called encouraging by some Republicans.

Connally said a bipartisan subcommittee probably would be appointed to counsel with state department experts on the form of the proposed organization.

Two pets, a dog and a cat also escaped. The cat, firemen said, came crawling out from beneath the burning timbers almost drowned from the water, but otherwise all right.

Three other alarms were received Saturday. The first, at 1:55 a. m., came from Glen Van Sickle of 894 Oak Grove avenue, and was answered in the chief's car. It resulted from a furnace filling the house with smoke.

Burning rubbish in the rear of 405 Fairground street started a grass fire about 1:15 p. m. Saturday. The call was answered in the line car.

At 2:59 p. m. an alarm was phoned in which proved false when the chief's car cruised on East Farming and George streets without finding any signs of a fire.

Middletown and Akron Ellet Ready for Banquet Circuit

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 27—Middletown's Middies and Akron Ellet Orangemen, Ohio's newly crowned 1944 high school basketball champions, are ready for that tour around the banquet circuit that generally goes with winning a state title.

Proud home town fans are expected to find out this week whether the boys are as handy with a knife and fork as they were Saturday with a basketball. Both schools will be celebrating their first state championships.

Middletown, the new class A king, never before had gotten beyond the first round of a final state tournament. But Saturday the Middies—particularly Will Smethers and Chick Boxwell—broke the hearts of Martins Ferry and Toledo Woodward with a deadly one-handed shooting offensive that wrote a brilliant climax to a season which saw the team win 21 games and lose only 1.

That the Middies also had the courage to look defeat in the face and say "never heard of you" was shown Saturday night against Woodward. They had watched a 10-point lead dwindle into a five-point deficit and they still were three points behind with only three seconds to go. But they tied the score and then won in an overtime, 50 to 47, after dropping three points behind again.

Akron Ellet never before had even played in a final tournament but the Orangemen breezed to the class B title with 10-point margins over both Philo and Lima St. John's.

Middletown plans a banquet this week for its team. There wasn't any big celebration when the team arrived home at noon yesterday but the boys were kept plenty busy accepting congratulations.

Crowd Greets Team

A crowd of 500 met Ellet in Akron and by the time they paraded to the high school grounds more than 3,000 persons were on hand to shout their greetings.

Middletown's final-game victory over Toledo Woodward was preceded by a 38 to 34 conquest of a disappointing Martins Ferry quintet that hadn't lost a game all season. It was in that tilt that Smethers and Boxwell wrote a new page in tournament history by scoring 36 of their team's 38 points.

Woodward reached the final game with a stirring 46 to 40 triumph over Canton Lehman.

Middletown's vaunted defense had Martins Ferry stymied all the way but Woodward's 47 points were more than had been scored on the Middies by any team this season. The Polar Bears were so close to winning the title they'll be talking about it for years to come. Bob Harrison's scoring splurge had shot them into the lead after they had failed to score a field goal for the first 11 minutes.

Woodward Wrecked

A free throw and one of those deadly one-handers — both by Howard Schueller — wrecked Woodward, however.

The Middies not only won the title but they swept all scoring honors. Smethers finished up the two games with 35 points and Boxwell with 29. Harrison of Woodward was third with 25 and Toledo's Johny Payak was fourth with 24.

Indicative of the scoring power of Smethers, Boxwell and Schueller was the fact that those three lads tallied 79 of Middletown's 88 points.

It also may be of interest to Ohio's class A teams to know that seven of the ten boys on the Middie tournament squad will be back again next year. Schueller and Boxwell from the first string will be graduated along with reserve George Hagen.

The Middie triumph was a particular tribute to Coach Royner Greene, a veteran of 15 years at Middletown. The job of keying the team for tournament play appeared to be just about as near perfectly done as possible.

Akron Ellet didn't have nearly as rough a time as Middletown.

The Orangemen didn't have any too much trouble beating Philo, 49 to 39, in their first game and Lima St. John's folded in the last half of the final tilt. St. John's had a 25 to 21 lead at the half but LeRoy Thompson and Dean Short warmed up to their work in the final two quarters and Ellet gradually pulled away.

Tough Semi-Final

The afternoon game may have had something to do with St. John's inability to keep up the pace. The Titans had to battle through two overtimes to eliminate Worthington, 42 to 40.

Thompson, a tall, gangling center walked away with the scoring honors in the B tournament. He tallied 35 points in the two engagements. Short and James McPherson of St. John's tied for runner-up honors with 30 each.

The day's best single scoring achievement in either tournament was the 21 points scored by Virgil Harris of Philo's losing battle against Ellet.

Ellet will have to start almost from scratch next year. It's an all-senior outfit, in fact, eight of the squad will be graduated this spring. Coach Fulton J. Scott also probably will be gone. He has been classified 1-A in the draft.

The two tournaments had their daffy aspects— as usual.

An Ellet player shot a field goal in the wrong basket Saturday night and that was two points for St. Johns.

And downtown in the Columbus auditorium it was necessary to halt the afternoon games several times so water, leaking through the roof could be wiped up off the playing floor. Some plaster also fell.

Cincinnati Line-Up Beginning To Take Definite Form Now

By The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 27—Barring any further onslaughts by General Hershey's representatives, Bill McKechnie, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, has a pretty good idea what his starting lineup will be April 18—the day the Reds open the season against the Chicago Cubs in Cincinnati.

Matters in left and right fields seem to be settled with Eric Tipton and Gee Walker, respectively, slated for the jobs. In the center will be either Dain Clay or Tony Criscola.

What happens to Frank McCormick, first baseman who takes his induction physical next Saturday in Indianapolis, is a bothersome question for McKechnie. If McCormick passes his place will be filled by Chuck Aleno.

Roland Harrington, rookie second sacker, will stay with the club until called to the colors. When he goes, Woody Williams will take his place.

Eddie Miller, last year's regular shortstop will be back. Buck Fausett will do the honors in the hot corner.

Ray Mueller, Reds' iron-man catcher, will be assisted this year by Lennie Rice, a newcomer, and Al Lakeman.

Joe Beggs, Ed Heusser and Bucky Walters are three of last year's pitchers who are expected to be around.

Pitcher Elmer Riddle, who has just passed his army physical examination at Ft. McPherson, Ga., said last night he had not yet decided whether he would report to the Reds' training camp.

At LaFayette, Ind., Cleveland Indian officials said rookie hurlers Ed (Specs) Klieman and Lefty Hal Kleine will be the first to stride onto the mound when outdoor play is resumed.

Both were slated for duty yesterday but rain and snow forced cancellation of the Tribe's first exhibition game with the Pittsburgh Pirates at Muncie, Ind.

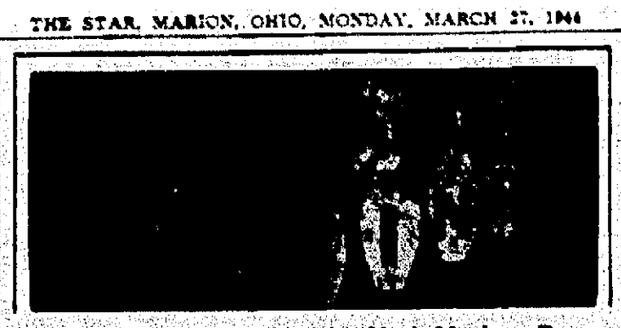
News from other big league camps:

Rookie outfielder Augie Bergamo of Detroit showed the St. Louis Caardinals yesterday he can hit.

The 160-pounder who sparked Columbus to victory in the Little World Series last fall, poled two triples to right center to help the National League champs beat the Fourth Ferrying group team from Memphis, 10-3, at Cairo, Ill.

Lakewood, N. J.—Ace Adams, star relief pitcher, signed a Giant contract.

Evansville, Ind.—Tigers received word from Robert Gillespie, 24-year-old right hander, that he'll report within a week from Columbus.



Bill Bibler Rolls 231 Score for High Mark at Recreation Center.

Bill Barber, City league kegler, stayed in the bowling groove long enough at the Marion Recreation Center Friday night to topple 231 pins for high single count and a leading 594 three-game mark. In the Commercial loop at the Palace Recreation, Layman had top game, 218, and Winters of the Morral Supply team, best series, 578.

National City Bank increased its first place lead in the Commercial circuit to two games with a pair of wins Friday night while Omar Bakery slipped past Alloy Cast Steel into second position. Schaffner-Denzer still has a big lead in the City loop, eight games.

Other high games in the City league were Tarr 223, Messmore 203 and 205, and A. Gruber 203. Other Commercial circuiters to get into the 200 class were Anderson 213, Robinson 204, Phillians 207, Mitchell 203, Irvin 210, Woessner 203, Weis 210, Penry 202, Winters 213, and Rickey 201.

GIL DODDS PREACHES IN FATHER'S PULPIT

SMITHVILLE, O., March 27—"You can be a much better athlete if you are a Christian," says Gil Dodds, unchallenged king of the milers.

The Boston divinity student occupied his father's pulpit at morning and evening services yesterday in the First Brethren church.

At evening services Dodds asserted it is possible to be both an athlete and a true Christian.

"The race of life has similar rules to those an athlete follows in training," he said. "You can be a much better athlete if you are a Christian."

The left ankle he sprained while winning the two-mile event of the Knights of Columbus track meet in Cleveland Friday is "coming along fine," Dodds reported. He added his next track appearance probably would be made in May.

A student at Boston Theological school, Dodds plans to go to Ashland, O., Thursday for examinations in correspondence courses he has been studying toward completing his work at Ashland college.

TWO WATCHMEN KILLED

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 27—Two watchmen were killed Saturday as steel girders, extending from a moving freight car, ripped through a two-story brick warehouse of the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Co. A part of the building collapsed and George Duffy, 74, and Arthur McCune, about 63, were crushed to death in the wreckage.

Most Valuable Players Chosen

In recognition of their season-long performances, 12 grade school boys have been chosen as the players most valuable to their teams in the 1943-44 Gra-Y basketball campaign, completed last Tuesday.

Each team in both Gra-Y leagues, A and B, submitted their selections to Marion Mewhorter, Y.M.C.A. program director, and supervisor of Gra-Y activities. Factors taken into account in making the choices, according to Mewhorter, were "team work, team spirit, scoring ability." Eleven of the boys are sixth graders and one a fifth grader. Six are 11 years old, five 12, and one, Dick Morgan of Silver street, 13. Probably the outstanding players in the list, on the basis of all-around ability displayed this year, are Charles Rinderle of Glenwood "A", Gregory Graham of Greenwood and Richard Leffler of Pearl street. Rinderle, who as center led the Glenwoodmen to the city Gra-Y championship, was high scorer for the season with 124 points in 10 games.

Players chosen are as follows:

Guy Steiner, Jr., Forest Lawn, forward; Gregory Graham, Greenwood, forward; Robert E. Craft, Oakland (A), forward; Harold R. Bowman, Oakland (B), forward; Richard Leffler, Pearl, forward; Nick Maniaca, St. Mary, forward; Charles Rinderle, Glenwood (A), center; James Haycox, Mark, center; Earl Berridge, Glenwood (B), guard; Merle Daum, North Main, guard; Robert Johnson, Oak, guard; Richard Morgan, Silver, guard.

WEATHER PLAYS ROLE IN FOOD PRODUCTION

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 27—Weather over the grain belt from this point onward until harvest time will play an important part this year in determining the food supply of this nation, as well as the amount which may be diverted to the allies, crop experts asserted today.

The situation with regard to grains is somewhat different than in other war-time springs. Thus far, the country has been able to use grain stored up in previous years when heavy production far out-stripped demand.

By this time, however, surplus stocks have either been reduced or wiped out. The food supply is more dependent upon this year's crops for livestock feed.

Anything approaching a crop failure will be a disaster of the first magnitude, grain men said, but they pointed out that good moisture in the late winter has improved the outlook as much as anyone dared hope during the drouth of last autumn.

While weather is the primary factor, the department of agriculture said "all areas are affected by the draft and by the movement of workers to war jobs, but where the farms are large, productive and mechanized, many farmers are in a position to pay wages high enough to compete with industry."

OVERFLOW AUDIENCE HEARS GIPSY SMITH

Sunday Night Attendance Estimated at 2,000.

An estimated 2,000 persons crowded Epworth Methodist church auditorium, Sunday school rooms and annex where a loud-speaking system was installed for the Gipsy Smith union evangelistic mission service last night. Many stood during the entire service. Visitors were present from a number of communities at a distance including Columbus, Massillon and Springfield and from out of the state. A men's meeting in the afternoon filled the main auditorium and balconies. At these services music was by the choir and Mrs. Smith, wife of the evangelist, Gipsy Smith, sang.

Taking as the theme of his evening sermon "Stripe Washing," the evangelist based his thoughts on the passage from the sixteenth chapter of the book of Acts wherein the Apostle Paul and his companions were loosed from their prison chains and the keeper of the prison "took them the same hour of the night and washed their stripes...." The application was made to the need for the man of sin and of the professed Christian who has sinned to "wash away the stripes," to "cleanse his heart from evil and make restitution for his sin to those he has wronged."

In referring to the experience of the jailer who asked "What must I do to be saved?" he declared "before answering him 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ,' Paul dealt with the thing that was inside him that was ruining him." He condemned those who depend on self-righteousness to make them worthy of a place in Christ's kingdom. "Man is never saved by his good works alone," he emphasized, "nor did Christ ever say 'Come and shake hands with me and I'll make you a member of the church and a Christian,' but he declared, 'Ye must be born again.' You must feel the miracle in your heart."

At the men's meeting in the afternoon the evangelist used as his text the passage, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked: whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." His theme was centered around the idea that "you get out of life what you put into it. If you try to cut corners, ignore real values, cheat in what you put into life, in the end your life will be miserable.

A service with a reserved seat section for women will be held tonight at 7:30.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

TO "DAD AND MOM"

Editor of The Star: I've read so much about youth and crime lately in The Star that I wish to voice my opinion on it.

I'm a local preacher and hold services in the county jail once a month and it certainly is a pitiful sight to see those young men behind bars.

One of God's commandments is, "Honor thy father and thy mother."

I have a son of my own in his teens and I've asked myself the question, 'Am I living so that my son can honor me?' I'm trying to mold in him all the good things I wanted to be and could have been. With God's help I intend to do this.

God says if we honor our parents our days will be long upon the earth. But if your parents are too busy to pay any attention to their children how can they expect honor from them.

There is an old saying "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the nation".

Parents, wake up and pray and give your children the attention they should have. Never be too busy to be a Dad or Mom. Your children need you and your love and counsel. There'll be less crime if we all do this.

RAILS, LIQUORS DRAW BUYERS

Churchill Warning of Impending Invasion Tends To Dry Up Buying.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 27—A few rails and liquors attracted buyers in today's stock market while air transports, gold mines and most leaders continued to stumble.

Further warning of Prime Minister Churchill that the hour of invasion was approaching tended to dry up investment demand to some extent. A smattering of good earnings statements aided individual stocks.

Dealings were sluggish from the start and trends well mixed near the fourth hour.

In front the greater part of the time were Bethlehem, Chrysler, Du Pont, Dow Chemical, Eastman Kodak and General Electric. Losers included American Car & Foundry, American Airlines, United Air Lines, Pan American Airways, and Montgomery Ward.

GRAIN PRICES SLUMP LATE IN SESSION

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 27 — Grain prices slumped in the latter part of the session today, rye dropping about a cent at times, as profit-taking expanded following the strong markets of last week. There was no improvement in the feed grain supply, corn bookings amounting to only 26,000 bushels, but traders said the futures market was in a position for a technical set-back.

Some of the selling in wheat was based upon reports from Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma that "wonderful" moisture had fallen over the winter wheat belt in the past 30 days, improving the crop "far beyond expectations." In Oklahoma it was reported "one of the best crops in years" was shaping up for that state.

Wind Damages Speed Barn at Fairground

A speed barn, located on the east side of Marion County fairgrounds near the large racing stables, was damaged last night by high winds. The building was empty at the time but was large enough to house twelve horses. An estimate of the damage has not been given yet.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

KATIE'S eyes flashed past me to Hugh, and, knowing her mental processes, I "dee-dooced," as she would say, that her frantic summons to me had something to do with him. And even though I welcomed the opportunity to get away from the chat he had requested, I knew that I must find out the meaning of her summons before I left my father's suite where he and Lee Chow were in hiding.

But Hugh did not wait for me to make a decision. He had risen when I did, and he now strode past me to the doorsill.

Takes Charge

"Come inside, Katie," he said, "and tell us what is the matter. You don't want to waken the little girl."

"It dot taxi man vot brought you here," she said. "Dot skoonk Shumway. Hees car shoost drew oop to door. I could hear heem knocking on door ven I coom oop stairs. I roon like—you know vot—" she giggled inanely—"as soon as I set my eyes on heem." "Did he see you?" Hugh's voice was crisp, insistent.

"You bet he didn't. He steel knocking down dere."

"You know what this means, don't you?" Hugh turned to me tensely. "If you tell him that Kent took us to Riverhead—the yarn we planned—he's going to hotfoot it after Kent and discover the hoax."

"No, he isn't," I answered firmly. "He's going to drive me to Easthampton. I'm going to tell him it's a mercy he came,—that you wanted me to do something for you in Easthampton sometime today and that I had no other time, and was trying to get a driver. Please lend me some money from that roll quickly, and I'll get my hat and coat and go down to the door before he starts hunting up Jim."

"He no find Jeem," Katie put in. "He vay oop in woodlot getting vood."

Bills

"That's fine," I said, and reached my hand out for the bills Hugh handed me.

"Did you figure where you'd go in Easthampton?" Hugh asked, as I moved toward the door.

"I'll go to the John Howard Payne house and look around, as if I were taking notes. Then I'll have him drive me down to the ocean, and walk along the beach as near as the Coast Guard will let me—anything to while away the time. And Katie, tell Jim that all you know is that the two men who came here went away in a taxi about half past two.

"He no find anything oudt from me or Jeem," Katie averred stoutly.

"I know that, Katie," I said. "Is there anything you wish to have me do, Hugh?"

"I have nothing to add to your admirable plan," he said, "except—I don't like you driving off alone with that man."

"It's daylight, and he's a coward," I said. "Besides, I'm going to take my little friend with me. But I must hurry, Katie, if Mother Graham looks for me, tell her what happened, and that I didn't have time to see her."

Her dismayed "Oh, Gee!" followed me as I rushed down the hall to my own room, crammed my bills into my bag, tucked my "little friend"—my silencer pistol—into a hidden pocket of my gown, and catching up my cloak and hat, ran downstairs, depositing the hat and coat on a chair before I went to the door from which Shumway was just turning away.

"Oh, Mr. Shumway!" I said breathlessly. "I thought I heard somebody rapping! I was way upstairs. And I'm so glad to see you. I want you to take me to Easthampton."

I was watching him narrowly, and saw that he was as taken aback as I had hoped he would be.

"To Easthampton?" he said. "I'm afraid I can't. For one thing, I've got to get back here to take your friends to Bridgehampton at five-thirty, and I know what ladies are when they go anywhere; they're always longer than they expect to be."

"Yes, I fancy they are," I said airily. "But you won't have to come back here for them."

"Why! Aren't they going?" he asked quickly.

Gone

"They've already gone," I said. "They wanted to get into New York as quickly as possible, and they decided to be driven in to some station along the road, I think. I don't know just what they did decide."

Even in the stress of the moment, I fleetingly wondered what had become of the Puritan conscience which had been such an integral part of me before my marriage. I could imagine Dicky's cocked eyebrow and his lazy grin if he could listen to this colloquy. Lying in your teeth!" he would have flung at me laughingly. But looking at the shifty eyes of Shumway, I had no qualms.

I saw anger and defeated cupidity flash into the eyes of the man standing on the porch.

"Look here," he blustered, "that feller can't do that to me! Why, the dirty double-crosser! He's doin' me out of my money! He'll find out he's made the mistake of his life!"

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Common Cold

Surgeon-General Thomas Parran, M. D., of the United States Public Health Service, has come out in a current magazine article and tells about how absenteeism due to illness is sabotaging the war effort, and urges us all to do our part for victory by keeping well. The General is always fascinating when he warms up in this way because he never thinks anything out, and I read him with great interest.

Among other things he is against the common cold. It causes more absenteeism than any other ailment and you can lick it, says the General. This is fascinating. I am against the common cold too, but I don't know how to lick it, and I followed up the General's introductory statement with bated breath.

The General is a little vague about how we are to avoid the common cold. He says we must use our common sense. That is like the famous advice about how to avoid falling hair, which was—"Step rumbly to one side."

"Stay away," says the General, "from people who have coughs or sniffles." But the war factories are full of people with coughs and sniffles and to stay away would seem to me to increase absenteeism. Besides, the General thinks anybody who has a cold should stay at home. So between those who stay at home with their coughs and sniffles, and those who stay away to avoid coughs and sniffles there wouldn't be anybody in the factories at all. Sometimes these deep-thinking scientists mix me up.

Perhaps at this juncture I can offer a helpful suggestion with due acknowledgement to the Editor of the Middletown Times-Herald, Middletown, New York. In one of my columns, which the Times-Herald charitably printed, I expressed some doubts about the cocksureness of recommendations for cold remedies. The Editor seemed to feel that I had overlooked an old reliable American way of treatment, and asked me publicly in his columns whether I had ever tried skunk grease, averring that one of his friends had obtained some remarkable results with it. I was chagrined to acknowledge that I had not, but promised that if I could obtain some (that was the hitch with me) I would submit it to the most careful scientific tests.

The Editor promptly sent me a supply and, true to my word, I gave it a scientific trial with the following gratifying results.

Hon. Abner Gulp, whose avocation in bars renders him especially liable to colds, tried one of my samples and reports—"Nature's remedy!! Having rubbed some on me, my wife drove me out into the yard for the night and the fresh air cured me."

Mortimer J. Sleck, who has a well-trained legal mind, says—"The effects are obtained by psychologic means. A cold annoys you to the extent of what you think of it. After the skunk grease is applied your mind has no time to worry about a cold."

Charles F. McCarthy, a pencil guster, writes—"It is preventive! Application of the grease automatically prevents you from mingling with crowds. Hence you are not subjected to coughs and sniffles."
